Dream Report WINS “Engineers’ Choice” Award

February 8, 2018 – Ocean Data Systems (ODS), the market leader in reporting and corporate dashboards for the automation industry, announced that Dream Report has WON the “Engineers’ Choice” award, by Control Engineering Magazine.

More than 90 product nominations from 43 companies were entered for consideration in the 2018 Engineers’ Choice Awards. Control Engineering subscribers voted to identify the products they felt were the most exceptional based on technological advancement, service to the industry, and market impact. Engineers’ Choice Award winners and honorable mentions were named in 26 categories. This is the 31st year of product recognition for the publication, highlighted in the February 2018 monthly edition, in several newsletters and at www.controleng.com/EngineersChoice.

“We are very honored that Dream Report was chosen for this most prestigious award,” explained Roy Kok, VP Sales and Marketing for Ocean Data Systems. “Our success with Dream Report and with our various OEM partnerships is clearly a win for our customers. Dream Report is installed in all markets and all around the world, and we are very happy to see that our customers are also Control Engineering readers.”

“Innovative solutions such as Dream Report make manufacturing and other control engineering applications more efficient through the smart application of new technologies. Investments in the best products and software can help solve the most pressing challenges in automation, control, and instrumentation,” according to Mark T. Hoske, Control Engineering content manager.
